

The oldest orange tree perhaps in the world died lately at Versailles France, at the age of 445 years.

The government is actively enlisting colored men in Tennessee, to fill up the cavalry regiments.

The skeleton of a man thought to have been murdered was lately found on a plantation in Jackson county, Florida.

The Atlanta and Richmond Air Line Railroad was sold last week, and was bought by the bond-holders for $1,600,000.

Oranges weighing three quarters of a pound each, and an average of the crop were grown in Columbia County, Florida, this past season.

Two brothers in Thomas county, Georgia, lately disputed about the ownership of an opossum, when one seized an axe and struck the other over the head killing him instantly.

General Samuel Cooper, late adjutant and inspector-general of the armies of the Confederate States, recently died at Cameron, Fairfax county, Virginia, in the seventy-eighth year of his age.

The Brooklyn Theatre, in Washington street of that city, lately took fire behind the stage during the performance of the "Two Orphans," and was burned to the ground. Over three hundred persons were burned to death and many injured.

General Daniel Woodall, for a long time United States assessor of Internal Revenue in Wilmington, Delaware, committed a forgery amounting to over $20,000, which has just come to light. He has fled the State.

Moses Howard a colored Democrat of Charlotte, N. C., was lately not only brutally whipped because of his politics, but, not satisfied with this, the ruffians took his horse and tied it to the track of the C. C. & A. R. R., at night, and the animal was killed by the train.

A number of people are making arrangements to emigrate from Massachusetts to North Carolina. They expect to settle in Burke County, directly on the line of the Western North Carolina Railroad.

Benjamin Marsh, jr., for many years city clerk of Newport, Rhode Island, has mysteriously disappeared. He bore an unimpeachable character and there is no appearance of any defalcation; and his unaccountable absence has astounded and confused his friends.

A Great Change.

The Boston correspondent of the Springfield, M. A. S., Republican writes: "Strong as the lurch of the country was toward Tilden in the week of the election, it has been twice or thrice as strong of late, and if the election were to take place again, to-day, he would have 5,000 majority in Boston, and would stand some chance of carrying the State. Hundreds and thousands of Republicans are sick and tired of this endless business of forcing carpet-bag governments upon the South at the point of the bayonet, and disgusted at the thought that even in South Carolina the office-holders can command the whole army and navy to keep themselves from being turned out by the popular vote. This state of feeling makes itself perceptible in the Republican newspapers. The Transcript and the Advertiser have virtually seceded from the Rule-or-ruin Republicans, and even the Journal has left off praising the South Carolina board of canvassers for "overreaching" the Supreme Court, and begins to omit the Southern question in its daily publications. The patience and forbearance of the Southern Democrats is in every way praiseworthy. They are deservingly successful, and they are going to win it. Tilden is to be peaceably declared President, peaceably inaugurated, and the country is to have peace from that time forward. The people of the country, who are wiser than any of their nominal leaders, are going to decide this matter suddenly and in the way that will involve them in the fewest future difficulties. That way is the inauguration of a new administration under Tilden. Sixteen years ago it was the inauguration of a new administration under Lincoln. The party names are changed now, but the crisis demands the same regimen—a change of administration. All the bayonets in the country cannot prop up a power that the popular will has condemned whether in Columbia or the District of Columbia. If it cannot be but that bayonets should come, go to him by whom they come, all the same! Our countrymen love the soldier in his proper place, but not in the State-house or the court-room."

How to Stop Drinking.

A newspaper correspondent, writing of strong drink, says: "Those physicians who are not habitual drunkards don't know anything about the progress of the disease; they only see the results of it, and therefore they cannot handle it as they do other diseases. Those who are habitual drunkards become too much weakened physically and intellectually by the vice itself to be able to pronounce a cure. "I am an old drinker. Have drunk a quart of whiskey every day for the past fifteen years, except an occasional day or two when I have 'sworn off.' I am satisfied that there is no medicine for it. Social habits are a strong incentive for one, man to drink, thirst for stimulant for another, although the first may abhor the taste and smell of the fluid. The effect is what the inebriate of either class desires and needs. In the interest of the poor unfortunate inebriate let me tell him, if he is in earnest in his desire to break off, to shun all liquor at night. He will not be able to sleep for a night or two, but he will come all right in a short time. Let him eat a hearty breakfast, and should he be nervous a few hours afterwards, let him fight it out, hide himself, and shake it out. One or two hours will give him relief. Then let him take some solid food, and hurry to his home, avoiding the social companionship of men, which is one of his greatest temptations, and keep to himself as much as possible. All medicines prescribed to prevent thirst or nervousness are of no avail. It is the will, and principally the will to stop drinking at night, and to keep aloof from social drinking friends. I have tried it, and I know. The dread horrors of delirium tremens have never befallen me, but I have seen them in others, and have made a study of dipsomania, or I would not offer these hints."

VEGETINE

STRIKES at the root of disease by purifying the blood, restoring the liver and kidneys to healthy and action, invigorating the nervous system.

VEGETINE is not a vile, nauseous compound, which simply purges the bowels, but a safe, pleasant remedy which is sure to purify the blood and thereby restore the health.

VEGETINE is now prescribed in cases of Scrofula and other diseases of the blood, by many of the best physicians, owing to its great success in curing all diseases of this nature.

VEGETINE does not deceive invalids into false hopes by purging and creating a fictitious appetite, but assists nature in clearing and purifying the whole system, leading the patient gradually to perfect health.

VEGETINE was looked upon as an experiment for some time by our best physicians, but those most incredulous in regard to it are now its most ardent friends and supporters.

VEGETINE instead of being puffed-up medicine has worked its way up to its present astonishing success by actual merit in curing all the cases of the blood, of what-over nature.

VEGETINE is acknowledged and recommended by physicians and apothecaries to be the best purifier and cleanser of the blood yet discovered, and thousands speak in its praise, who have been restored to health.
